DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. The drawings, filed on July 28, 2003, are accepted.

Specification

2. Claim 3 is objected to because of the following informalities:

Claim 3, line 1, "claim 3" should be changed to "claim 2".

Claim 6, line 3, "a index" should be changed to "an index".

Appropriate correction is required.

Applicants' cooperation is requested in correcting any other errors of which applicants may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-3, 8, 11, 13-15 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yoshimura et al. (U.S. Patent 5,854,868).

With respect to claims 1, 2 and 11, Yoshimura et al. (figures 1A, 5A and 5B) disclose a method and an apparatus of an optical waveguide device comprising a first optical waveguide having a first end (see figure 1A); a second optical waveguide having a first end, the first ends of the waveguides being separated by a gap (figure 1A); and an optical coupler extending across the gap between the first ends of the waveguides, the optical coupler comprising material including a waveguide region, the waveguide region having a shape defined by overlapping cones of light emitted from the first ends of the optical waveguides into the material (figure 5B and column 5, lines 34-42); wherein the material has a refractive index capable of being increased by exposing the material to light of a particular wavelength or wavelength band (column 3, lines 62-66).

With respect to claims 3 and 15, Yoshimura et al. (figure 5B) disclose a method and an apparatus of an optical waveguide device, wherein exposing the material to the light of a particular wavelength or wavelength band causes the material to undergo cross-linking.

With respect to claims 8 and 18, Yoshimura et al. (column 5, lines 35-40) disclose a method and an apparatus of an optical waveguide device, wherein the first and second optical waveguides each comprise an optical fiber.

With respect to claims 13 and 14, Yoshimura et al. (column 5, lines 35-46) disclose a method for aligning optical waveguides, wherein the exposing comprises propagating incoherent light of the same wavelength through both optical waveguides and propagating light of different wavelength through each of the optical waveguides.

Art Unit: 2874

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 4-7, 9, 10, 12, 16 and 17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art fails to disclose or reasonably suggest a method and an apparatus of an optical waveguide device, wherein the material undergoes cross-linking by one-photon absorption as recited in claims 4 and 16; wherein the material undergoes cross-linking by two-photon absorption as recited in claims 5 and 17; wherein the first and second optical waveguides each comprise a core surrounded by a cladding, the cladding having an index of refraction and in the waveguide region, the material has a refractive index of the cladding of the optical waveguides as recited in claims 6 and 7; further the waveguide region is surrounded by a solid form of the material having a refractive index less than the first refractive index as recited in claim 9; wherein the waveguide region is surrounded by a liquid form of the material having a refractive index less than the first refractive index as recited in claim 10; and further wherein comprising uniformly exposing the material to light of an intensity in the region as recited in claim 12.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Ikarashi et al. (U.S. 2003/0223692) disclose optical parts coupling structure having overlapping cones of light emitted from the first ends of optical waveguides (figure 4C).

Art Unit: 2874
